“Pieces of the Puzzle” : The whole is more than the sum of its parts

Duration: 3.5 hours

of people in Group: 10-30 people

In this exercise, participants will be tasked with recreating a famous work of art by one of many celebrated artists; Picasso, Kandinsky, Matisse, and Delaunay, are just a few of the possibilities.

Each participants will be given a set of brushes, paints, a canvas, and a section of a larger image (think of it as a single piece in a puzzle). The task: reproduce the image onto the canvas. All participants must communicate and work together to ensure that, when united, the individual canvases will resemble the famous piece of work that is being replicated. The facilitator will work closely with the team, providing guidance, support and encouragement, and reminding participants of the time limits.

While the painting is under way, participants can enjoy an optional wine and appetizer service.

When dry, all canvases will be connected to create the whole; the entire team masterpiece will be unveiled for all to celebrate.

After completion, professional artist Maya Gohill will take the canvases and add some finishing touches to it. The end result – a team masterpiece, which can be hung on a wall at the office as a daily reminder of the memorable experience shared together.

“...[the instructor] enabled our group the opportunity to bond and learn how to work together as a team, while also discovering more about each other in a personal sense”

“By far the best ‘offsite activity’ I have participated in to date!”
